CONGRESSIONAL HAPPENINGS IN WASHINGTON

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress

There has never been a more difficult time to prepare this column (which must be written five days in advance of publication) than during the past two weeks, when one news story after another, of world-wide importance, has been breaking. In all probability, by the time this paragraph appears in print the war in Europe will be over. At least that is the expectation of many high officials in Washington. It has been the most bitter and costly war in human history, and the end is not yet. Millions who have died during the conflict, of course, can never be brought back to life. Other millions will live out their days maimed of body and broken in health. Shattered and separated families can never be reunited. Generations will be required to rebuild the industries and the cities which have been destroyed. Children yet unborn will be taxed to pay for the European holocaust. All of this because of the ungodly thirst for power which caused a few men to violate all human rights and moral laws. Many of these men are now dead; but other ambitious men will follow to bring destruction and suffering to humanity unless some workable method can be found to prevent future wars.

Now that all the fate of the Nazis has been settled, our undivided attention must be turned to the Pacific and to our Japanese enemy. Already large numbers of men and huge masses of material are on the move to the far east. Russia is expected to enter the war against Japan quite soon. The British have long been pledged to an all out effort in the Pacific, following the defeat of Germany, and already a British fleet and many British troops are in the Orient. However, it will take several months to concentrate the United Nations' power against Japan. Once this is done, final and complete victory in the Pacific conflict should not take too long. Many qualified observers believe Japan's final capitulation may come much sooner than most people expect.

General Marshall, Chief of Staff, has announced draft call quotas will not be reduced the next few months. He bases the continued heavy demand for new inductees on the need for troops to replace men who have already been in service for a long time. He has especially referred to the need for bringing home many of our soldiers from the Pacific area, many of whom have been in service since 1940, or nearly five years. Some of the new inductees, along with many soldiers now in this country who have not seen overseas service, will be used to police the occupied countries of Europe. Many of the veterans of the European war will be discharged from the service, while others will be transferred to the Pacific theater of war. Where possible the transshipments of troops from Europe to the Pacific will be made via the United States with stopovers at home. The War Department points out, however, that it will be many months before any great number of men are brought home from Europe. An elaborate point system is being established by the War Department for use in selecting the soldiers to be given discharges, with a certain number of points being given for dependency, number of combat hours, wounds and decorations received, time spent overseas, total length of service, age, and marital status. According to present Army plans approximately two million soldiers will be discharged from service within the next year.

President Truman last Thursday vetoed the Flannagan Bill, which would have compelled Selective Service officials to follow the intent of Congress in interpreting the Tydings Amendment to the Selective Service Act in granting deferments to essential farm workers for whom replacements cannot be found. An attempt to override the President's veto failed to receive the necessary two to one vote, although a majority was cast in favor thereof. Many Democratic members, who had originally voted for the Flannagan Bill, supported the President's veto because of their belief the end of the war in Europe would mean an early reduction in draft calls, while others hesitated to oppose the will of their new party leaders.

The statement issued by President Truman last week praising the Office of Price Administration, and the policies and work of its head, Chester

Seeks Damages For Alleged Eviction

W. L. Marshall, Xenia, has filed a suit for damages against Lee Shoffner, that city, for $1841 damage. He claims by his petition in Common Pleas Court that he was evicted from a lodging house operated by the defendant, while absent from the city. The plaintiff claims he rented a room on a monthly basis and while he was absent last June 17 or 18, the defendant forcibly entered and removed his personal property, changed the lock and refused the plaintiff access. The plaintiff says he recovered certain items of his property through a replevin suit in municipal court and filed a complaint with the Dayton rent control office. The United States district court then ordered Shoffner to restore possession of the room to the plaintiff in the same condition and at the same rent as before the eviction. The plaintiff returned to the room Feb. 18.

Staff Sgt. Coleman Visits Grandmother

Staff Sgt. Robert Craig Coleman has been the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. A. D. Payne, following his release from German prison by the Russians. He was wounded abroad on two occasions and returned to active duty each time.

He was taken prisoner twice by the Germans. He escaped past the guard on the first and later was captured a second time when as a paratrooper he made a leap over Holland. He was confined in a prison camp east of the Oder river. When the Russians reached that area, he was released from the war camp by them and returned to Russia. He was then returned to this country.

He enlisted from this place in May 1942, and was sent overseas in March 1943. His mother, Mrs. Eula M. Coleman, resides at Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati.

WATER TABLE RISING

The water table raised 17 feet in Greene county during the last three months according to a report of the Ohio Water Supply Board of Columbus. The report is based on measurements of wells by local farmers. There are 5 observers in Greene county. During the past three months the average use for all counties in the state was 5.4 feet.

CHECK CORN PLANTER

Time out to check the corn planter before the day arrives to plant the fields may save a lot of trouble in tending the crop and may have considerable effect on yields. Planters can be tested either by jacking up a wheel and operating the machine by hand or by actual operation in a place where the dropped kernels can be seen.

The most common defects of the planter are inaccuracy of drop and of checkrow, stringing out the kernels, or cracking the seed. All these troubles can be removed by adjustments except when caused by a bent frame or other distortion which must be corrected by a repair job or new parts.

DAIRY SUBSIDIES ANNOUNCED

Butter subsidy payments will be 10 cents per pound for May and June; 13 cents in July, August and September and 17c in October and through March 1946. Payments on milk will be 60c a hundredweight in April; 25c in May and June; 45c in July, August and September, and 60c in October and through March 1946.

PERMIT REQUIRED IF MEAT IS SOLD

Farmers who slaughter or have animals slaughtered for them for sale as meat in their neighborhood must obtain a class 3 slaughterer permit by applying to their local ration War Price and Rationing Board. This permit limits the sale of dressed meat to farm slaughterers in any quarter of this year to the same amount sold in the corresponding quarter of 1924. A class 3 slaughterer is a resident operator who last year sold not more than 6,000 pounds of dressed meat. Farmers who sold no dressed meat in 1944, may register with the rationing board and market up to 400 pounds this year. A farmer is not required to have a permit and is not restricted in the amount of meat dressed for consumption in his own household.

MEAT STORAGE SUPPLIES LOW

Data released by War Food Administration as of April 1, 1945, indicates that the total supplies of meat and products in storage are very low at this time of the year. Supplies of pork are only 41 percent of the volume of pork stocks a year ago, and less than one-half (48 percent) of the five year average. The real shortage appears to be in lard and rendered pork fat, which is only 11 percent as compared with April 1, 1944, and only 19 percent of the five year average from 1940-1941. Beef supplies are about 55 percent of a year ago.

CORN SUPPLIES SHORT IN EAST

A comparison of corn supplies on farms in 12 cornbelt states on April 1, shows this year's supply is equal to or larger than that of last year in all states in the area except Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin. The effect of this shift in supplies is reflected in the percent decrease of cattle on feed in five eastern cornbelt states and the 13 percent increase of such cattle in seven western cornbelt states.

CUT HAY AT RIGHT TIME

Quality of hay depends upon many factors but the most important of them is the time of cutting and this factor can be controlled. Hay cut at a stage that increases the chance of leaves being retained during curing will be much better feed for any class of livestock than hay cut so late the leaves shatter readily. The leaves are high in feed value and increase the palatability of the hay.

Dr. Hugh Wyatt, lecturer of the Extension Department of Capital College in Columbus, will deliver the commencement address at Selma High School on May 17.

Rev. Reed Miller Will Deliver Baccalaureate To College Seniors

REV. J. REED MILLER

The Rev. Reed J. Miller, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, Xenia, is to deliver the Baccalaureate address Sunday evening at 8:15 to the graduates of Cedarville College, according to announcement of President Ira D. Vayhinger.

The Rev. Miller is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, holding both the B. A. and the M. Litt. He also holds the doctor of theology from the Pittsburgh Xenia Theological Seminary. He is the present Moderator of the Second Synod of this area and in 1945 was dean of the Synodical Young People's Conference at Winona Lake, Ind., where he has served a number of years as teacher. For four years he has written the commentary for the Sunday School lessons in the publication of his denomination. His subject to the graduates will be "The Last Invasion."

Council Discusses Sewerage Problem

Village council held a lengthy session Monday evening when the question of sewerage came up, three representatives of Miller street, being present to ask council for authority to construct a private sewerage line and connect to the trunk line on Xenia ave. The delegation only represented themselves as property owners. As a $100 payment with the permit is required where there are no sewers, the delegation was willing to pay this on condition they would get credit for it when the whole town was sewered or at least that district. This raised a legal question that caused considerable debate and will go to the solicitor. It was also proposed to change the ordinance governing certain controls over sewer lines and this became a legal question if part of the town had had to meet the payment would it be right to change it for the benefit of others today? Council is willing to assist the property owners but have to be bound by legal requirements.

The extending of the sewer on East Xenia ave is another problem and the village authorities have been trying to find a legal method of taking care of those who want to take advantage of sewer connections.

A number of other topics were under discussion, particularly the use of the fire department outside of the village and how it might affect the present insurance rates. Clerk Nelson Creswell read a communication from Columbus which advised council to make arrangements with the township trustees. Another suggestion was to aid fire outside of the corporation only adjacent to the village. No definite action was taken.

"EARN AS YOU LEARN"

Cedarville College has faced the same problem that most colleges encounter, that is to help some of its students to earn as they learn. For a long time, when necessary, the college has loaned money to worthy pupils, to further their educational pursuits. Not one of the borrowers has failed to repay his loan.

Many students found jobs about town. But furnace tending, running mowers, and "baby sitting" are just temporary tasks, helping the individual to eat but not adding much from an educational point of view. Nor were there any too many of such tasks available.

The group of men controlling the functioning of the college, decided to think it out. . . and after all, thought is still one of the strongest of powers. In this instance, the thought-necessities resulted in action. It was decided to provide a permanent means of work for many boys and the kind of work that would be profitable and instructive too. Of course, you know that the college bought a farm, which is managed and controlled by the Farm Committee of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College, J. A. Finney, Rankin McMillan, William Coffey and President I. D. Vayhinger. No one questions the fact that this farm will provide constant work and that this Committee, everyone of them sons of the soil, knows how to manage affairs there.

The farm itself is a good one. On the Townsley Road which is now being called the Cedarville College road, not much more than a mile from Cedarville, is this broad-level property of 205 acres. It was formerly a part of the W. W. Creswell farm. It is all tillable with occasional trees along the neat fences. It is an orderly looking place.

The frame house was moved to its present site from its former position on the opposite side of the farm. It has been remodeled and is now a nice looking, seven room, white frame dwelling with electricity, kitchen sink . . . and hopes for more conveniences as soon as they can be secured.

This house is the home of William A. Boyce, his wife and their two small boys. When a manager for the farm was to be chosen, President Vayhinger went to Berea College in Berea, Kentucky, and asked for one of their capable graduates who could take charge of such an enterprise, one who would also be the right type of man to direct and to work with the college boys sent out of help him accomplish the multitude duties of the soil. Mr. Boyce's name was instantly suggested.

He liked the idea, too. He looked over the farm, the personnel, and was definitely interested. Thus this Tennessee young man farm manager trained in the unexcelled Berea way, came to the college farm, three years ago. He is just as enthusiastic about it as President Vayhinger and his committee have shown themselves to be. He has proved to be a dependable manager and an outstanding, likable personality that the boys respect and enjoy.

Mr. Boyce cheerfully stopped the grinder as we came near the shed, as though grinding feed did not matter in the least, if we needed to talk with him about the farm. But anyone clever enough to rig up a length of drain pipe from the floor of the granary overhead, to the hopper of the hammermill, will find a way to make up the time consumed in talking to visitors. Incidentally, all feed for cattle, hogs and poultry of the farm, that requires grinding, is done with this hammermill.

We stood near the corn crib of sweet smelling, yellow ears, to utilize the protection of the building from the stiff March wind that banged about our country in spite of April on the calendar. As far as eye could comfortably see, beautiful fields stretched, bright green with rippling wheat or brown or black with spring turned furrows. White hens were finding their lunch of wiggling worms and scurrying bugs in the new turned soil. A big cow looked across the lumber pile to satisfy her curiosity about strangers, her deliberate steps and rhythmic cud-chewing uninterrupted by mere human beings. There was another dairy cow somewhere and 25 breeding Herefords nipping fresh pasture to develop poundsage that will provide steak and hamburgers for busy students.

The placid cow eventually went to the circular, concrete watering trough for a long drink of water. Water is constantly supplied from a good well by the tall, windmill whose fans were whirling in the strong wind. In the winter the trough water is heated. Nearby is the barn 40x50 ft. with a 40x25 all. The plans call for enlarging this barn.

TURN CLOCKS TO LEGAL OHIO TIME

Dayton City Commission voted 4 to 1 at a session Wednesday, called for a specific purpose, to return to slow time Sunday, effective at 3 A. M.

The city has been divided on the time question, the laboring classes being up in arms for the change. The city commission jammed the fast time down the throats of the public last April and with a city election coming this November, the commission was forced to recognize the protest against fast time.

[Cincinnati recently adopted slow time as have most all towns in the Miami Valley and southern part of the state. Cincinnati this week voted to return to slow time after petitions were presented by citizens by two to one for slow time.

Locally the schools, college and the churches should go back to slow time. If we sense business sentiment, slow time is preferred in that group. Greene county is an agricultural county and fast time is a great injustice to every farmer in the county. There is no argument that can be presented that the farm element is to be benefited. The argument that fast time meant a saving in electricity is pure "baloney", and cannot be substantiated even by records of electric companies.

Wilmington and all the owns in Clinton county have gone back to slow time.

So far as employees at Wright and Patterson Fields are concerned, with fast time there, the action of the Dayton City Commission, kills the argument that fast time is necessary in Greene. We are informed that only the high up Army officers at the Fields want fast time. The employees are forced to take what they do not want.

It is time to give the farmer a break and go back to slow time for all of Greene county. The court house clock should be set back to slow time, which the legal time under the laws of the state. Fayette county farmers forced the county commissioners in that county to turn the courthouse clock back to slow time last year as required under the Ohio law.

Give Greene county farmers a break and return to Ohio legal time! No one dares make fast time a political issue in the county.

Grange Opposes Xenia Parking Meters

Xenia's proposed plan to place automobile parking meters through the center of the city when a five-cent charge is to be collected for each hour of parking, has stirred the rural trading population and opposition is fermenting. The Grange has taken up the question, the organization being 100 per cent opposed according to reports.

The proposal to meter the four sides of the Court House hits another tender spot and county cars now have reserved space during business hours. It is necessary that the sheriff, engineer and several of the other county offices that have cars must have parking space near the courthouse. The commissioners asked for space for six cars from the City Commission but were only allowed two so far.

In as much as these cars belong to the county who is to be fined and jailed? The county owns the cars and the city municipal court cannot fine the county. Moreover the city in the past has had many favors from the county, some of which can be and might not be continued. A number of things have been pointed out that the county does for the city without any charge.

There is another angle to the meter situation on the Green street side of the Court House. When the city asked for five and one half feet to widen the street, the county granted the favor but did not deed the strip to the city. It is pointed out the city now has no legal right to place meters on that side of Green street.

After all it looks like the Grange might have a card up its sleeve when it comes to the city charging for the parking of county cars. Some taxpayer might also have some objection to the city taking over that 5 1/2 foot strip of street for revenue purposes.

Washington Letter

Bowles, just about ended the political honeymoon of the new Chief Executive, as far as Capitol Hill is concerned, for every Congressional Committee which has made any investigation of the food situation has unanimously condemned OPA practices and strongly criticized Mr. Bowles' administration of the Price Control Act. Food shortages are growing. Black market operations abound everywhere in almost every rationed commodity. The Congressional Committees charge unwise OPA price ceilings have not only caused many present food shortages, but have endangered future food production as well. Already the government's propaganda machine is busy grinding out excuses to why the American people must drastically reduce food consumption in the months ahead. While food requirements for the liberated and conquered areas of Europe will be heavy, they could have been met in a reasonable fashion, with out hardship to American citizens, if just a little bit of common sense had been used by our bureaucratic officials in meeting our food problems.

HAMILTON PRISONER TRIES TO MAKE HIS ESCAPE

There was a flurry here Friday last when Howard D. Thompson, 20, with a bad record, escaped for a time from the Butler County Sheriff, while the latter was getting gasoline at the Owens filling station. The prisoner was in his bare feet but that did not check his speed after breaking away. He crossed town and escaped some place on the west side. Chief Marshall called the Sheriff's office and Deputy Confer and Howard Spahr started for this place. When nearing the village they saw a young fellow leave the road and go into a field. Don't Fly Kites Near Electric Wires!

Say, Fellas, did you ever stop to think what might happen to you if that kite string of yours should tangle with one of those high voltage lines?

Well, some of you might get killed—and it might put a whole line out of commission—a line that carries light to hospitals and sick rooms—city fire pumps and factories. So watch where you fly kites and keep away from power lines.

A Safe Kite Flyer Observes the Following Rules!

1. He never flies his kite near electric wires of any kind. Kites with metal parts are dangerous if they fall across electric wires.
2. He never uses wire or twine that has wire or tin in it for a kite string. Wet string is dangerous because it conducts electricity.
3. He never runs across streets or highways while flying his kite.
4. He never climbs poles or trees to knock down kites caught in wires.
